

Article 103: Desired Lifeself-Patterning in Action

Are you beginning to understand that in sensing the richness of our words, the quality of a condition or situation, or the depth and fullness of a relationship, you are sensing the underlying personal lifeself-patterning? ...and you frequently feel this as a “tingling” up your spine. This awareness of the underlying personal-patterning is frequently felt and referred to as spirit, vibes, atmosphere, beat, mood, or aura of someone or something. Your physical life today is not one of struggling against God’s creations, you are judging, enduring, and struggling against the forms and appearances you have enlivened and manifested for yourself ...and the unformed awarenesses and true desires you have generally denied and ignored for so long.

Working as one, patterning and manifestations, as essence and form, maintain all things steady and reliable ...and infinitely variable ...which enables you to live the personal creations and life you truly desire without ever interfering with all other individuals living their manifestations and life as they desire. When living your personal-patterning of an enriching self-enlivened life and you meet another whom you do not desire, or whose life and creations seem to clash with yours, do not hold your feelings in and suffer, do not look for a “positive” way to express yourself, do not be false or speak falsely, and do not cry out, “That’s bad!”; but it is quite all right to exclaim, “that is not fitting in my life!” ...and move on, ...but be certain to understand what that event reveals about your enlivened and manifested self and life ...and the pathway you are traveling.

Many sadly disappointed and disappointing “teachers and writers” attempt to convince you that you cannot be or live as you please ...simply because life is in control and presents conditions, events, and situations for you to deal with, learn from, and endure; ...not so! ...though by looking back at the events and circumstances of your self and life this may seem so. This point-of-view and the resultant conclusion that this is true, occur only because you believe this is true ...and because you look at your life in this way. Life’s infinite-patterning fully supports your beliefs, thoughts, attitudes, emotions, words, and deeds ...but not necessarily your stated or hoped-for meanings, motives, and desires; ...but, of course your meaning, motives, and desires will be fully and emergently supported in your personally enlivened and manifested youniverse ...if you will support them with every belief, thought, attitude, emotion, word, and action. After all, why ever would you expect the universe to support and offer to you what you won’t support and offer to yourself?

Ancient teachings of enlightenment state flatly that your fully satisfying self and life cannot come about until your belief in a separate self is completely obliterated ...such that awareness of self becomes the truth of all things. However, for you, in your self enlivened and manifested youniverse, awareness of self IS the truth of all things, ...only your judgments blind you and veil the truth of what you have enlivened and manifested in your youniverse. Like a hologram, you are simultaneously the piece AND the whole, individuality and oneness, for infinite-patterning, like a hologram, reveals all things through every part, ...or, infinite-patterning enables the entire universe to be portrayed in and revealed through every distinct part. Through infinite-patterning, you can enliven, manifest, and live the particular self and life you desire without ever losing, sacrificing, or conflicting with the oneness and fullness of others ...or of all things.

Your mind and life are not split into a duality or separateness which must be returned to oneness ...or to God, they are already one within life's or God's infinite-patterning ...and will function in that way ...if you will end your judgments, ...which are false constructs anyway. In order to rid yourself of duality thinking which leads to judgments and a self and life based on false beliefs, ancient teachers devised "mind tricks" such as koans, meditations, ceremonies, and sacred activities without ever considering, it seems, the simple fact that duality thinking and beliefs, and the self and life you manifest from the infinite-patterning universe, merely follow the pattern of language ...which created false judgments, and which you incorrectly enlivened and manifested in your own universe. Good and evil are not manifestations of the universe, they are enlivened by each person in his or her youniverse.

A presumption of ancient teachings which you have embraced and enlivened and manifested in your youniverse ...and constantly struggled against, is that you cannot alter or change "what is", that you can only see and experience the truth of life as it is fully created and presented ...and clearly and correctly live that. You have carried forth the belief that while thinking and reasoning are necessary for living a normal self and life, all such actions interfere with seeing revealed truth, sensing spirit, knowing and becoming one with God, or understanding life and the universe "as it is presented"; ...are you now ready to surrender these false beliefs and begin enlivening and manifesting the self and life and environment you truly desire from life's infinite-patterning? Or will you maintain these false beliefs, live life "as usual", and struggle against your own manifestations ...only to create and live an undesired self and life?

Science reveals that every particle gets its unique form and characteristics from the frequency, intensity, pitch, and overtone of its vibrating pattern, ...which is another way of saying that all form is enlivened and manifested from the universe's infinite-patterning.

It is frequently declared, by those who should know better, that you cannot impose your will upon the universe that God has created and formed, ...and that if you try, the consequences upon you will last for years or lifetimes. Don't you believe it! ...for the universe emergently fulfills every belief, thought, attitude, emotion, word, and action you are willing to consciously enliven and manifest; therefore, if your life is disappointing, lacking, unfulfilling, or crowded with problems and burdens, and your body is constantly racked with pain and illness, ...what is actually occurring in this is that your presumed beliefs, choices, and will are all at cross-purposes or cross-choices, or you feel you can “cause” something in the universe without choosing appropriately desirable constituents. The universe’s infinite-patterning always works with you and for you, ...and if matters are asunder for days or years or lifetimes, that is the universe’s feedback revealing that your presumed beliefs, choices, and will are asunder ...and you have these problems for years or lifetimes only as you continue enlivening and manifesting your self and life at cross-purposes.

The universe’s benevolent feedback enables you to see and understand what you are creating and struggling against ...and make finer choices, if you so desire, ...only you tend to carry these problems on. The universe is perfectly satisfied with your every belief, thought, attitude, emotion, word, and action at every moment ...and lovingly carries nothing on to the future for you to deal with, resolve, or overcome. However, if you feel that karmic consequences will eventually have their way with you, then you will continue these beliefs and eventually repeat the same errors and problems by enlivening them from the past and manifesting them in your present life, ...so of course they show up again and again ...and again, but that has nothing whatsoever to do with karma or the universe, ...only with what you are enlivening and manifesting.

Do not accept that some great purpose, wondrous discovery, proper tone, or extraordinary personal-patterning will come to light in your life in its time, ...or that there is even a “right” time or a “wrong” time for these things to appear, ...for this is simply not true. This is your life ...and all things come in your time, ...if you do not have a desirable tone to your self and life, you haven’t chosen and lived these things, ...probably because you are filled with, satisfied to have, and deluded by traditional beliefs and teachings ...all of which sets much of the tone of yourself ...and the lack of wonder and greatness in your life. Is this what you want to continue?

You cannot move forward or advance in life as you desire while holding on to the past ...or by supporting traditional beliefs and teachings which conflict with your desired wonder or lifetone or personal-patterning. Do not accept beliefs and teachings merely because they are traditional, sound reasonable, and have been around for centuries, ...for only after declaring your self and purpose, will appropriate beliefs and teachings and patternings become self-evident. Life’s infinite-patterning is not a mystery, it’s completely revealing, ...and what it reveals is that the universe will completely support any belief, meaning, purpose you desire, ...and it will fully embrace anything you choose to enliven and manifest.

Do you really believe that the universe will hand you a divine purpose and enrich your self and life for you? ...or lead you upon a great mission which cannot be fulfilled without you? The purpose of the universe’s infinite-patterning is so you can create your own life and mission ...and richly follow that. Do you expect the universe to create and enliven you? ...or offer you a wondrous discovery? Could it be that you are to manifest and bring life to the universe's infinite-patterning as you desire ...and in harmony with your lifetone? Is your lifetone a gift from the universe? ...or are you and your lifetone your gift to life?

Could it be that you are the gift, the giver and the receiver?

You are much like a lamp that is covered over by cloth wrappings, such that, as you remove each layer, the light seems to get brighter and brighter, yet the lamp has not changed at all, ...the brightness was always there ...but it was almost fully concealed by coarse wrappings of closely interwoven problems, judgments, and reactions. Attempting to resolve this situation, many teachers declare that if you would separate your mind from sensing ...which creates desires, there would be no problems, burdens, illness suffering, or darkness in your life, but you choose to sense and fully live your desires, ...don't you? ...for you probably feel, as we do, that this is natural and necessary if you want to enliven and manifest, through consciousness, the enriching self and life you desire from life's infinite-patterning. Sensing and desiring normal and natural, ...what is unnatural and unnecessary is judging what you desire and have sensed, for judgments are a false creation of language ...and are not part of life.

It is foolish to see life's offering of divine free will to create as you truly desire ...and forsake that through judgments, ...isn't it? Do not listen to those who foolishly preach that to have yourself you must forsake yourself. Let them abandon their desires and free will ...and their extraordinary selves, if that is what they desire, ...but, for you, choose and live the enriching self and life you desire and abandon your judgments. If you want exciting tranquility without conflicts in your self and life, make peace with what you have embodied and manifested of life's infinite-patterning by ending your judgments, ...for that alone will bring you serene wisdom, enhanced awarenesses, and enriching understandings. No thought of goodness or peace in contrast to evil and unhappiness, no love and forgiveness in contrast to unlove and unforgiveness, and no acceptance in opposition to unacceptance will ever bring you the goodness, peace, forgiveness, and acceptance you desire ...or the love and happiness you long for, ...you will only have contrast and opposition. Applying your free will to create as you desire is not enough, you must also know what you truly desire ...and what you are actually enlivening and manifesting of life's infinite-patterning.

If you believe that experiencing is only reacting to an exterior stimulus or event ...and this "proves" that the universe of your environment and experiences is already enlivened and manifested ...and is not an unformed infinite-patterning, ...you are incorrect! ...for certainly you can experience a thought ...and this did come from an outside stimulus or event, ...did it? Can you experience an inner-vision? ...an emotion such as peace or contentment? Do these visions or emotions come from outside? Ohh, you can experience many, many unformed things, ..and “this experiencing” is the beginning stage of enlivening, manifesting, and embodying of life’s infinite-patterning.

You frequently experience dreams without reacting ...and yet at other times, you react violently or sadly ...or with pleasure and happiness, ...what is the difference? The difference is judgment! You can experience, joyously so, without judging and creating an opposite, ...and you can live and experience as you desire without judging and straining against your judgments, ...but you don’t believe this, ...do you? So, you will deny the universe’s infinite-patterning by believing that the universe is a formed environment for you to experience and judge and struggle with ...and, in that, forsake your free will and all that you truly desire. Are your judgments and struggles so right and precious? ...and worth the price of all that you hold dear?

The infinite-patterning of life enables you to end the confusions and entanglements created from judgments by simultaneously revealing yourself in every belief, thought, attitude, emotion, word, and action ...and in every event, condition, circumstance, and situation. Individuality within oneness is maintained by life’s infinite-patterning ...and this enables you to see and know and live all things as you desire ...without ever creating false opposites and judgments; ...and this simultaneously enlightens and reveals all similar knowings from any one knowing, enlivening, or manifestation.
