

Article 337: Languaged Teachings -part 2

Read part 1 before continuing ...or maybe you remember that the Master Teacher had promised Ancus (that's me) that with the "sacred knowledge" Offered at their school, Ancus would be able to "unlock even greater secrets from God's universe" by following the Law of Create and Creation (cause and effect), ..then, later, when Ancus reminded the teacher of his promise, the teacher replied, "It's futile to ask such questions, son. You don't even have the first key and already you want to move ahead of everyone. Slow down! You're not ready yet. You know nothing!"

He might as well have said, "Don't you dare challenge the dance-master, kid!"

Well, on with the story. "But, Master," I declared, haven't all things arisen ...out of nothing?"

See? ...I was an irritating pest even centuries ago, well, let's just say I was persistent, so while I had the floor, I continued, "For certainly, before the first thing of the universe emerged there was nothing; and before something appears today there is nothing. The Parthenon was built upon nothing, from nothing. Nothing can be caused."

"Stop interrupting with such ideas, Ancus. You cannot escape the Law of Create and Creation!"

"But, what if I have the key to create what I want and Antonio (another student) uses his key to create something that conflicts with that? We can't build two temples on the same spot. Then what?"

"Then, Ancus, you must follow the Law of Harmony, for every part and particle in the universe must be kept in harmony. That's absolutely necessary! You must always observe the Law of Harmony. You must never attempt to transgress that law."

Did you hear the dance there? When the Tango of Create and Creation didn't work, he quickly waltzed into the Law of Harmony. That's what your duality language always does: it's a Turkey-trot, becoming the Lindy Hop, moving into the Fox trot.

But I wasn't going to be fooled by his 2-step, so I persisted ...and asked, "But, how, Master? How can I do that?"

"You must learn to be creative without conflicting with Antonio's creations. You must think in harmony with him!"

"But, Master, how will I know what Antonio's creating? In the beginning, God only considered Himself, ...how can I possibly know what everyone is creating...?"

"You must learn the Universal Principle of Creation! See? ...the dance changed again, and the Master continued. "For that alone makes man special in the universe. God has revealed His Plan and laws to us so you can learn to act within them and help fulfill His desires for the universe. And, instead of struggling against obstacles and difficulties, or even against your own pain and suffering, you can honor, nurture, and develop God's plan, which will carry you over and beyond your present burdens, problems, and limitations.

"Now", the Master declared a little exasperated, "to continue our discussion, let us consider matter. This is an important aspect of the universe, for, without solid matter, all things would constantly flow together and be indistinguishable ...and nothing could be known. And we could not know of God's plan or of His Universal Laws. By working together and following those laws within a Universal Oneness, then all things may develop and grow, while maintaining the strength and stability of the Original Universal Oneness. But this knowledge cannot be given to those who are not awakened to Spirit..."

The Master paused to see who was really paying attention. He wanted to determine who would continue in the school ...and who would be dismissed. He noticed that several students avoided his intense examination.

"Spirit condensed God's primary substance into all the matter that you see today ...and Spirit maintains that matter in perfect order and harmony and oneness through complementary forces. Instead of struggling against Antonio you, Ancus, must complement his desires so you work together."

"How do we do that, Master?"

"Spirit created all matter in a dual nature, so you could perceive the Universal Principle of Creation acting within the Law of Harmony and Balances, ...and so you could discriminate between that which follows God's Divine Plan, and the Spirit of His laws, ...and that which violates those laws.

"Ancus, you do not create things; ...but, by creating the right conditions, God, acting through His Universal Principle of Creation, manifests Himself in many wondrous ways, but it is up to you and Antonio to properly establish those conditions without conflict.

"To create anything, Ancus, you must properly call upon the Creative Spirit and Power found within all things, for that only is the Original Force of the Universe."

Now, that was such a quick-step from one thing to another thing to another without saying anything that I didn't know what to say. Thank goodness for Antonio, who interrupted, "Master, if all of these laws and forces are true and constantly active in the universe, why do we not experience them?" Antonio was uncertain whether to question the Master in that way. "And if we can't see or experience these laws, how can we follow them? How can we realize this Spirit and Power? And how could I ever act against Universal Harmony and Balance?"

Antonio paused when he saw another exasperated expression pass quickly across the Master's face, but he continued with his last questions. "How could I ever do anything wrong? For, wouldn't that mean that the Spirit or Creative Power is limited? And how could I ever restrict or change that power?" Antonio stopped abruptly as the Master began pacing; ...a sure sign that he was angry.

"Antonio!" the Master called sharply. "You must learn to discriminate between Spirit and the Forms of Spirit. What differentiates one from the other is the Law of Discrimination and Growth. Spirit is universal and all-powerful because it is not limited by form, while the Forms of Spirit are limited by their individual forms, just as you are limited, ...but all forms are made complete and held in harmony by their opposite forms. You, Antonio, are blinded by the Forms of Spirit, while I perceive the universal Spirit that controls all forms. And Spirit is never limited by the Law of Discrimination and Growth, for Spirit is complete and all powerful. Antonio, you have much to learn, so pay attention."

After considering all that the Master had said, including his previous teachings, ...and his answers to Antonio's questions, Ancus was not certain he understood these laws and principles, "...or maybe he's not making any real sense," he whispered to himself. "The universe can't be so complicated that a different law or power or principle is required for every little action..."

Ancus' thoughts were interrupted by the Master's increasingly determined voice. "During our previous talks, I have shown you that a Universal Spirit is absolutely necessary to maintain all matter, ...and to maintain that in harmony and balance. In the same way, all minds are similarly joined through the Universal Mind of Spirit, which prevents you from acting on your own. You must perceive and follow the direction of Universal Mind, for then you may select and follow the actions that do not conflict with that Universal Mind, ...and you can move even closer to the perfection of Spirit, which, through the law of Mutual Reciprocity, returns those benefits to you."
